Kaiah's Garden

By Melanie Florence, illustrated by Karlene Harvey

Kaiah creates her own treasure in a beaded garden that Grandma would have loved.

On a cold and grey day, Kaiah wakes up wishing she wasn't in this new house, in a new town. She misses her grandmother's warm kitchen and sunny garden. But Kaiah still has her treasure box of beadwork they made together . . . and so creates her own colourful connection to what she thought was lost. Their new garden becomes a treasure that is full of colour and love.

A special section at the end explains about beadwork and how it is an enduring art and form of cultural expression for many Indigenous people.

Ages 3 to 8 • Picture Book

All Our Love

By Kari-Lynn Winters, illustrated by Scot Ritchie

What makes a family strong and special is the love they share.

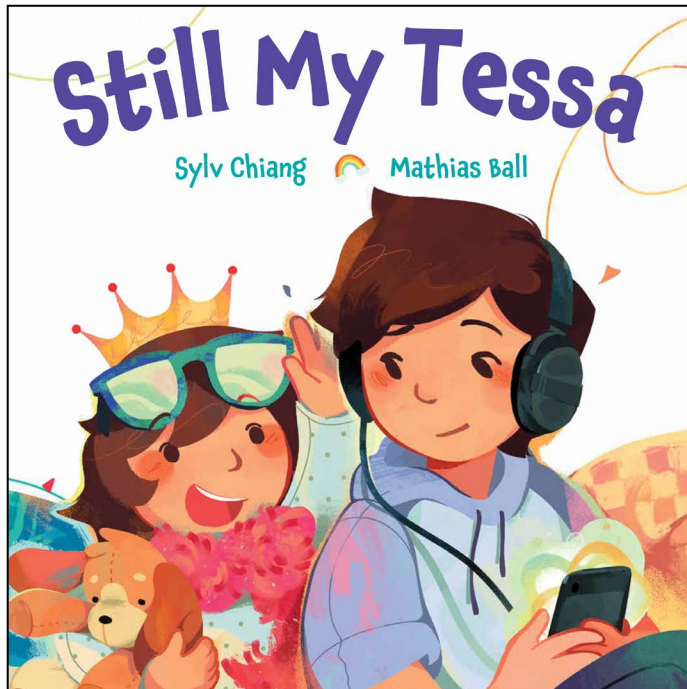

Sofia is excited that she will soon have a new sibling. But she has lots of questions too. So Sofia writes a letter to Oliver as she awaits his arrival. We experience Sofia's anticipation, her worries and excitement, and we also feel her big love for her family. Sofia tells Oliver all there is in store for him, like time with their dads doing things they love to do together — listening to jazz or making pancakes.

Family comes in many forms. Representation matters and is valuable for every child, as it reinforces that family is about so much more than the parents' sexual orientation. All Our Love reminds us that what makes a strong family is the love they share.

Still My Tessa

By Sylv Chiang, illustrated by Mathias Ball

Can Evelyn find new ways to connect with her older sibling?

Evelyn is worried about Tessa. Tessa doesn't want to play the same games they used to play, but Evelyn is determined to find new ways to connect with her older sibling. And she is also learning to see Tessa as a nonbinary person with they/them pronouns. In fact, Evelyn learns very quickly that it isn't hard, then shows Mom and Dad and those around them how it's done — with love. To Evelyn's delight, Tessa is smiling again!

A non-fiction page at the back of the story gives children, and those who read with them, background information on gender and the ways to be a kind and effective ally.

Ages 3 to 8 • Picture Book

SELLING POINTS

Wallace Edwards

Endlessly engaging ideas and questions paired with exquisite fine art!

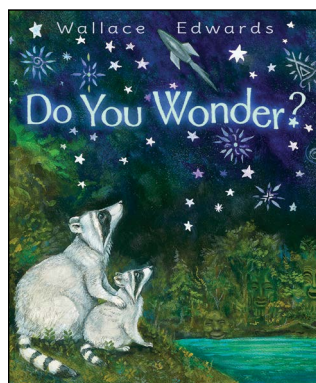

*I've heard it said that pigs can't fly,
They never leave the ground.
But I have gazed up at the sky
And watched the flying pigs go by
And they never made a sound.*

Wallace Edwards's work has delighted children and their adults for decades with his wholly original combination of stunning original artwork and witty, absorbing observations. Pigs Can't Fly is his final captivating collection of slightly surprising rhymes paired with art that is brimming with humour and delight. Maybe impossible dreams are not quite out of reach after all . . .

The Boy and the Banyan Tree

By Mahtab Narsimhan, illustrated by Dharmali Patel

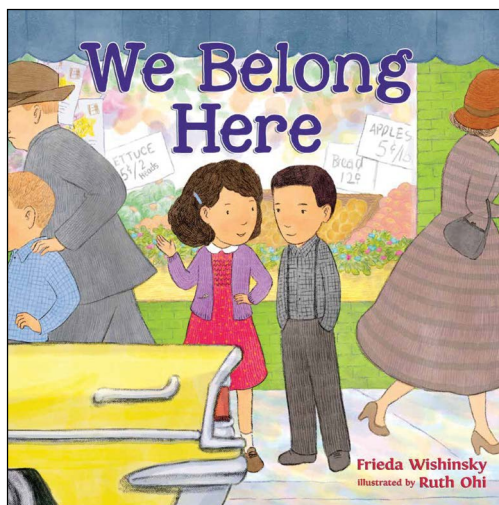

In a small village in India, a little boy loves a very old banyan tree. He climbs her branches, swings from her roots and sleeps under her cool shade. But yet he asks her for more. The banyan tree knows that skills are better gifts than granting wishes and encourages they boy to learn how to do things for himself.

The bond between them stays strong throughout the years and the young boy flourishes thanks to the tree's sage wisdom: be kind to someone in need!

We Belong Here

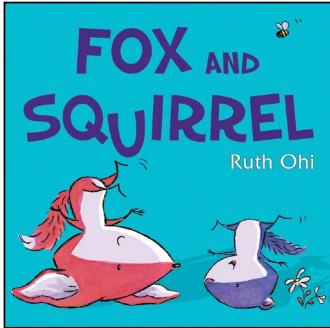

By Frieda Wishinsky, illustrated by Ruth Ohi

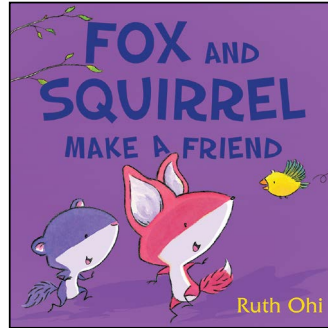

A touching story of how children working together can make a true difference. Eve's Jewish family owns the local grocery store. Though she was born in Canada, she is taunted at school for being an outsider. When Eve notices the same children bullying Mark Nakamura for his Japanese culture, she jumps in to defend him.

A friendship is born, one filled with fantastic stories and laughs shared atop the highest rock in the park. And when Mark's father loses his job, it's Eve who comes up with the plan that will stop Mark from having to move away and make yet another new start.

Class Trip

by Robert Munsch, illustrated
by Michael Martchenko

Stephanie and Sean's class goes on a trip to the museum where they get to watch baby chickens hatching. That gets them wondering what might be hatching out of the bigger eggs nearby. They ask the museum guide to show them the biggest egg in the museum. When they find it, they see that whatever was inside has already hatched, so the kids decide to have a little fun and hatch a scheme to prank the rest of the class. This class trip turns into the most fun outing EVER!

The Other Side of Perfect

by Melanie Florence and Richard Scrimger

- ★ Shortlisted, Manitoba Young Readers' Choice Award, 2024
- ★ Shortlisted, Red Cedar Award (BC Young Readers' Choice), 2023
- ★ Commended, Best Books for Kids and Teens, Canadian Children's Book Centre, 2023

Two kids from different worlds form an unexpected friendship in this lens into the interworking of empathy.

Cody's home life is a messy, too-often terrifying story of neglect and abuse. Cody himself is a smart kid, a survivor with a great sense of humor that helps him see past his circumstances and begin to try to get himself out. Autumn is a wealthy girl from an indigenous family, who has found herself in with the popular crowd even though it's hard for her to want to keep up.

But one night, while returning home from a movie, Autumn comes across Cody, face down in the laneway behind her house. All Cody knows is that he can't take another encounter with his father like the one he just narrowly escaped. He can't go home. But he doesn't have anywhere else to go. When Autumn agrees to let him hide out in her dad's art studio, Cody's story begins to come out, and so does hers.

Told in alternating narratives, The Other Side of Perfect is a powerful collaboration by two of Canada's finest writers of books for young readers. It reminds us that we are all more than our circumstances, and we are all more connected than we think.

At the Speed of Gus

by Richard Scrimger

A smartly funny and sympathetic story about being different and finding your way.

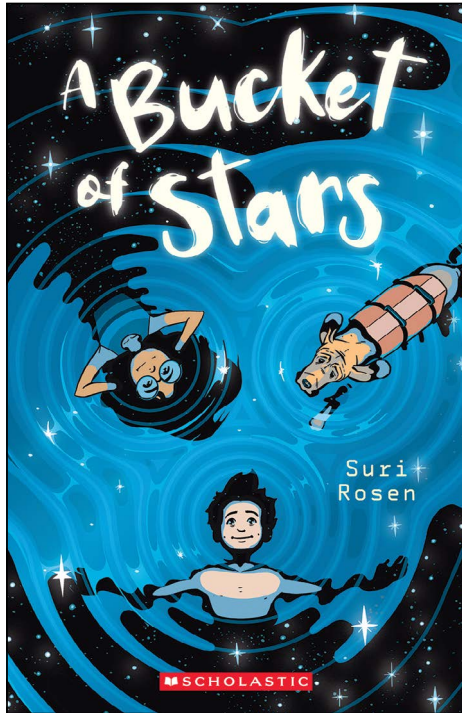

Meet Augustus, a boy whose mind (and mouth) operate at a different speed than the rest of us. The charismatic Gus has ADHD, and he's on medication to help him focus. But misuse of his medication is a recipe for disaster. Welcome to a frenetic, twist-filled day that is the result.

When we first meet Gus, he's taken over the morning announcements, much to the chagrin of school secretary Miss Funn (who's anything but) and Principal Gorby (who's tired of Gus's endless jokes). When he receives a three-day suspension because of his antics, Gus heads off to meet his sister at college. On the way, Gus's thoughts begin to race. He's having trouble concentrating and can't calm down. The ride gets wilder and wilder, and the reader follows along at the speed of Gus's brain, until it's hard to tell what's real from what's imagined.

At the Speed of Gus is a much-needed book for so many kids who need to see that their brains are a gift, even when (sometimes, especially when) they don't stay in the same lines as others.

A Bucket of Stars

by Suri Rosen

Two kids try to save the world they know and heal the families they have.

It's the summer of 2003 and budding astronomer Noah Cooper has just moved to Queensport, a small town with a sky full of stars. There he meets Tara Dhillon, a lonely but creative girl and aspiring filmmaker with a scene-stealing bulldog. As the two team up to produce a movie for a film contest, they uncover a secret plan to turn their small town into a huge subdivision.

Noah and Tara know that unless they can identify the culprits who want to pave over the historic county, the beauty of the stars might be lost forever in the glow of streetlights. As if that's not enough, Noah also needs to find a way to buy a new telescope for his unemployed father — an ex-astronomer who's almost given up on the stars, as well as life on earth.

Readers will cheer for Noah, a boy whose head is in the stars, and Tara, a girl obsessed with digital images, as they fight to preserve nature and small-town life against development in this high-stakes novel.

Summer's End

by Joel A. Sutherland

★ Shortlisted, Red Maple Award, Ontario Library Association

One terrifying summer can stay with you forever.

It's the summer before high school and Jacob and his friends are determined to make it a memorable one. This may be the last summer they have together; once school starts, they'll be going their separate ways: Ichiro's family is moving to Japan, and while Jacob and the twins, Hayden and Hannah, are staying put, they'll be going to different high schools.

When they discover an old, abandoned home on a remote island near their community, things suddenly take an unexpected turn. The kids find themselves inexplicably drawn to the house that had once been a sanatorium for children with tuberculosis and learn that it has some haunting secrets to hide.

A nail-biting novel from Canadian horror master Joel A. Sutherland — now with an even creepier new look!

"When it gets to the spooky business, Summer's End is tense and unnerving in all the best ways"

— Quill & Quire

"The summer adventures that these young characters go on — including a haunted house on an island — make this such a wonderful read"

— CBC Books

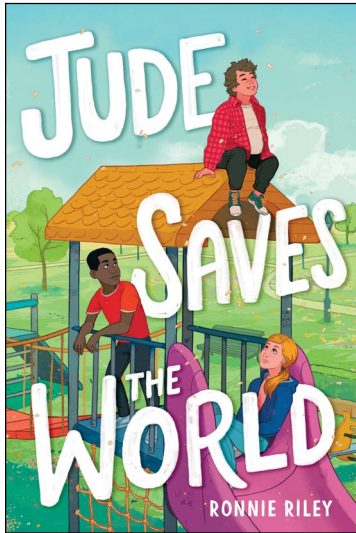

"Young teens looking for a dish of classic suspense and horror will be well satisfied with Summer's End . . ."

— CM: Review of Canadian Materials

". . . [A] deliciously creepy and suspenseful tale, perfect for young readers making their first foray into horror."

Jude Saves the World

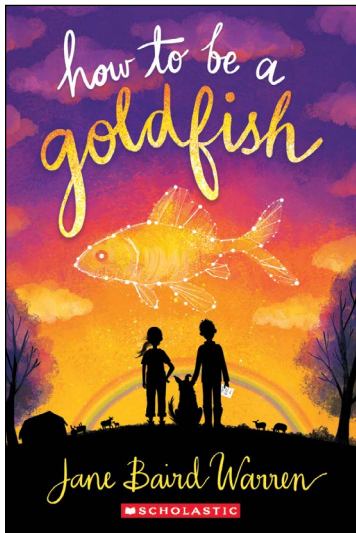

By Ronnie Riley

Jude struggles with focus at school, the weight of responsibilities and not being able to come out as nonbinary to their grandparents. But Jude has their best friend, Dallas, and then Stevie, a girl in their class who is ousted from a popular clique, joins the duo. Stevie finds their support a welcome contrast to the tests she had suffered before. And after Stevie's unconditional acceptance when Jude comes out to her, Jude finds the courage to move ahead with a plan to create a queer safe space in their town— a place where all people in the community can belong!

How to Be a Goldfish

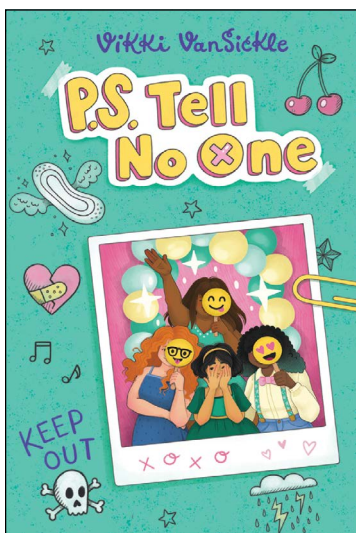

By Jane Baird Warren

Most folks in Lizzie's small town know that she's the only kid of an unmarried mom. But when her family tree research uncovers a big secret about her grandmother, Lizzie knows the talk about her family will explode again. She turns to Harry — who's like a grandfather to her — for help, but Harry has problems of his own. Someone has arrived at his farm claiming to own it, and is forcing Harry out! Now Lizzie faces losing Harry and the place that's been her refuge. But David, the new owner's son, soon becomes an ally. Together, they uncover the keys to saving Harry and his farm. Will Lizzie and David find the courage to share the secrets and stories that must be told?

P.S. Tell No One

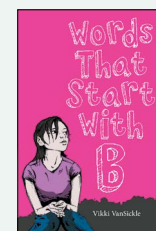

By Vikki VanSickle

When four friends have their phones confiscated in class, Sunny suggests using a secret shared journal instead. The book they jokingly refer to as the P.A.D. (pass-around diary) becomes filled with sweet, funny and sharp insights about navigating tween life — friendships, crushes, consent, bodies, parents, siblings, periods, sports and more. It soon becomes a place to explore and share big and small feelings — a safe way for Sunny, Twix, Hoops and MP to support one another through the awkward transitions of seventh grade. Like Are You There God? It's Me, Margaret, this novel is a fearless look at the lives of tween girls today, and how they find answers to questions that continue to feel impossible to ask.
